On behalf of The Arts Foundation for Tucson and Southern Arizona, I'm excited to invite public artists to apply to the Artist Roster for Public Art. The Roster is an opportunity for public artists to get their work and resumé in front of the community panels that choose artists for public art projects with smaller budgets under $50k.

In the past, applications for the Artist Roster were only open every two years. The Artist Roster was always open to all artists to submit an application during those periods, but now, with updated technology, the Artist Roster is available to apply to at any time with no deadline.

Please note that the Artists Roster is a tool that is available for community panels to use during the "Call to Artist" process for new public art projects with budgets under $50,000, and is simply a standing list of pre-qualified artists that work in public art. There are guidelines for which types of public art projects can use this tool -- and panelists may also choose to not use this tool. No matter what artists are chosen from the Artist Roster, there are still a minimum of three artists chosen for each qualifying project, and the artists must move through the regular public art protocols for the remainder of the process.
